Grown Men

Pilots flying at NBC, WB

By MICHAEL SCHNEIDER

"Scary Movie" star Anna Faris has joined the cast of NBC sitcom pilot "Blue Skies," while "Roseanne" vet Sara Gilbert will take another stab at a sitcom, this time in an untitled pilot for the WB from "Will & Grace" creators Max Mutchnick and David Kohan.

Frog also said yes to the Mike Sikowitz pilot "Grown Men," starring Dean Cain ("Clubhouse"), and a pilot presentation based on the Web site LiquidGeneration.com.

"Grown Men," about five thirtysomething former frat buddies dealing with adulthood, is still being shopped around to studios and remains cast contingent. Sikowitz's credits include "Friends" and "Grounded for Life," along with former writing partner Jeffrey Astrof.

Cain is best known for "Lois and Clark." His other credits include "The Perfect Husband: The Laci Peterson Story" for USA, and hosting duties on "Ripley's Believe It or Not."

Gilbert, Cain Tapped for WB Comedy Pilots

LOS ANGELES (Hollywood Reporter) - Former "Roseanne" star Sara Gilbert is set to headline a WB comedy being developed by the creators of "Will & Grace."

The untitled project, from David Kohan and Max Mutchnick, revolves around fraternal twin sisters who have nothing in common. Gilbert, who recently completed a multiepisode arc on NBC's "ER," will play one of sisters.

The WB is also developing a show called "Grown Men" starring Dean Cain. It revolves around five former fraternity brothers, one to be played by Cain, who reunite 13 years after graduating from college.

Additionally, the WB is working on "Liquid Generation," an animated, no-holds-barred sketch-comedy show based on popular youth-oriented Web site <http://www.LiquidGeneration.com>.
