SHOWBIZ BUZZ + CELEBRITY SCOOP

Things are super for former Man of Steel Dean Cain. Fresh off TBS's Christmas Rush terror-at-the-mall movie, Cain is joining Lifetime's The Division January 5 as Det. Jack Ellis, the love interest for Nancy McKeon's character. The two cops meet at an Alcoholics Anonymous session. Call it lust at first sight. "We hook up big time," he says. "We throw each other around the first time you see us and then all the time." Lifetime initially announced that Cain would be on the show for seven episodes, but he says it depends on his schedule. He'll be on at least three. Next up: the thriller "Out of Time" with Denzel Washington.

CLOSE-UP SEASON PREMIERE

THE DIVISION (CC)
SUN. 7 PM (LIF)

Back to the Beat The third season of the popular police drama gets off to a riveting start with an episode written by executive producer Deborah Joy LeVine. As the show opens, a vengeful mother shoots at her child's alleged molester, and Kate (Bonnie Bedelia) is nearly hit by a bullet. She is saved when Deputy Chief of Police Charles Haysbert (James Avery), with whom she regularly butts heads, puts himself in the line of fire. But there's no time for Kate to reflect on her close call before leading her detectives in the search for a missing 7-year-old girl, who it appears was abducted from her bedroom. Elsewhere, sparks fly between Jinny (Nancy McKeon) and fellow officer Jack Ellis (Dean Cain). (1:00)

RENT-A-QUOTE

"I don't like to talk about myself personally because it's none of your business. And I mean that in a really friendly way."
Joseph Gordon-Hewitt, formerly of 3rd Rock From the Sun, laying down the law to Zap2it.com

"Working with Stuart [Baird] was like working with a Monty Python character, really. I'm not sure that it's not John Cleese playing Stuart. Stuart – he's a wild man, he really is."
Brent Spiner extolling the apparently eccentric virtues of Nemesis director Stuart Baird to scifi wire

"It was like force-feeding a goose, my mind being a goose and the food being all this data..."
James Earl Jones on why being Darth Vader's voice was better than his original career path as a medical student, Jam! Movies, www.canoe.ca

"Most of the time [on TV], the kids are smart, the parents are clueless and they don't speak to each other. Ours is the antithesis of that. He turns to them and relies on their guidance."
Smallville Executive Producer Al Gough on why Clark Kent's such a good role model, quoted in USA Today.

"I would hate to comment on her career. If she's getting paid and she's happy, it's good."
Dean Cain avoiding the issue of Teri Hatcher's post-Superman career on www.tvguide.com

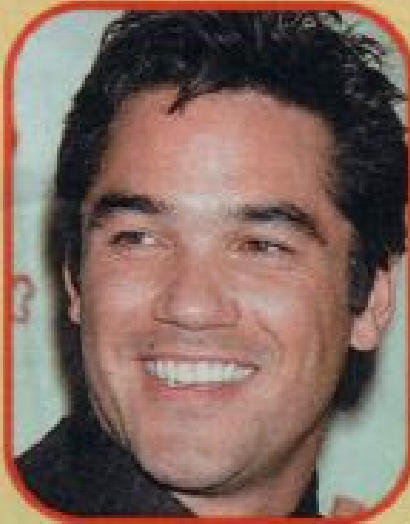

"It's now built up a body of work substantial enough to invite interpretation."
Dr Carol O'Sullivan, stripping Buffy of all coolness at the University of East Anglia, www.zap2it.com

~~Dean Cain, who plays Clark Kent, the most popular superhero in America, says he's happy, but he's not happy.~~

★ Ripley's Believe It or Not host DEAN CAIN describing his favorite guest: "There was a girl in India who chewed her hair and developed a 3-and-a-half-pound hairball in her stomach. It had to be surgically removed. I held it in my hands. It was kind of soft, actually."

★ MADONNA remarking about American Life: "It was really important for me to get outside of America, to live in England and appreciate the fabulous things about America, like customer service and stuff."

★ RACHEL GRIFFITHS on when an HBO show should die: "I'll stay on Six Feet Under, but I hope we ride it out at a strong point. Even The Sopranos should've ended after the fourth year."

★ Boomtown hunk NEAL MCDONOUGH revealing his former nickname: "I had an enormously large head when I was a kid, so my older brothers called me Headster Bro."
